

PETITION TO THE GOVERNOR TO EXTEND THE EVICTION MORATORIUM AND PROVIDE RENT RELIEF

We call on the Governor to extend Connecticut's eviction moratorium through the end of the emergency public health declaration and simultaneously fund a broad-based rent relief program to protect renters and landlords from economic ruin due to the pandemic. It is essential that the state not allow the eviction moratorium to expire before a program is fully operational and providing assistance to stabilize the rental market.

Connecticut currently has a moratorium on evictions until July 1. But the public health crisis and the related economic crisis will not magically end on July 1 or even by the end of the summer. In the last two months, more people applied for unemployment compensation in Connecticut than in the last four years combined. The federal programs that gave low wage workers temporary respite—the one-time stimulus payment and the enhanced unemployment benefits—will end soon. Unless the state allocates existing federal relief money to create a broad program to help tenants who are not able to pay rent, there will be a flood of evictions when the moratorium is lifted with cascading consequences for families, communities, landlords, and the economy.

Black and Latinx communities are bearing the brunt of the economic and health impacts of coronavirus, and they are more likely to be renters. For this reason, it is critical not only to create an adequately funded rent relief program but also one in which the rules, application process, outreach, and spending focus on the families which are hardest hit by the pandemic. The program must be available to all landlords and tenants regardless of their immigration status.

The federal government has given Connecticut almost $1.4 billion in Coronavirus Relief Funds through the CARES Act. The state is planning to use only $10 million for rental assistance, but this is not nearly enough to help affected families. By allocating even 10% of that money to rent relief, the Governor can stabilize tenants and landlords and avoid the devastation that could come to neighborhoods if the rental market collapsed from mass evictions and vacancies.

Eviction is not just a symptom of poverty; it causes poverty. An eviction record impedes a renter's ability to secure safe, decent housing, without which children are put at risk for lead poisoning, asthma, and other health issues. Eviction has serious societal costs too. Evictions result in academic loss to children whose educations are disrupted by missing or switching schools. Evictions negatively affect mental health, wellness, and decision-making. Destabilization of housing strains city services and can lead to increased use of emergency rooms, which is particularly dangerous in a pandemic.

A new flood of families without a place to live will be a giant step backwards in our fight to control the pandemic. We should not create a new public health crisis. The Governor should act now to protect landlords and tenants – families with children, elderly persons, persons with disabilities, and everyone at risk of eviction – by extending the eviction moratorium and providing sufficient rent relief necessary to keep our communities safe.

Signed,
